

Owning Patricia: A Story of Breaking of Free

There is a reason we live our stories to get to our real truth. Not the story that our family or society has imposed on us. Somehow I knew that underneath every single life event that challenged and even wounded, Inspiration knew my Name. What if facing obstacles improved the parameters of our capacity. We would not be victims of our circumstances. Let's rid ourselves of the notion that only joy is to be embraced. What if we used Alchemy as a way of living? Where we begin at a basic starting point and through experience we transform our intrinsic wealth using determination as our fuel. What if we become comfortable with the idea that everything we encounter in life—the love and the rejection—are divine appointments made specifically for us to help define the person we are destined to be? Then our lives can look rich at any given moment in any and all circumstance. What if we each knew that unrestricted acceptance of our condition was vital to empowerment? The truth of my story, today, entering my fifties, is to unconditionally love myself. From owning my raw and sometimes terrifying journey as a teenage prostitute on the streets of San Francisco, to achieving a successful 20-year career as a law enforcement officer, working with people whose choices, like mine, had led them into desperate places. Giving back in authentic form established its own influential reward! And now it is time to share my story, to retrace the dark steps in the alley I invite you to come along with me down into the depths, as I find my voice and own my power, step-by-step bringing myself up into the light. May you find inspiration in experiencing the uniqueness of who you are in Owning Your Name. Welcome the journey as you fully become all that you are designed to be and enjoy the wealth in what you behold.
