

A Baseball Story Never Told - Vol. 6 - A True Story About Yogi Berra, Whitey Ford & Phil Rizzuto: The Last Game Part. 2

Vol. 6, The Last Game Part 2 includes original, never before seen pictures of NY Yankees Hall of Fame Icons Yogi Berra, Whitey Ford, Phil Rizzuto and tells the story of the last baseball game Yogi, Whitey and Phil played in together. The 94 World Series was canceled September 14th while the three Yankees Hall of Fame players and their wives Carmen Berra, Cora Rizzuto, and Joan Ford visited the Palaces and castles of Vienna as ambassadors of Americas Pastime. September 18th Yogi, Whitey and Phil were stepping up to the plate to hit against the first Austrian All Star Team in the inaugural Austrian Cup exhibition baseball game. Their last game together is the first time Yogi had worn a Yankees uniform and cap since 1985 when he was fired as manager of the Yankees by George Steinbrenner. Yogis last competitive game ended his self imposed exile and began the return of his much publicized appearance to Yankees Stadium in 1999. The Last Game has original pictures of historical moments in which Yogi, Whitey and Phil field and hit during the game. The pictures are accompanied with never before heard or read transcribed historical correlating comments, conversations, interviews and comical moments. Its a one of a kind collection that is finally available to Yankees fans. This is historical, I think! Phil Rizzuto exclaimed as he gave a speech to the thousands of fans and players. Isnt life wonderful folks! Whitey Ford said as he covered first base while Yogi played second. It was a real good day. Yogi remarked as he managed the Yankees from the dugout. There is much more to this first hand account of this historical baseball game. Yogi, Whitey and Scooter were the shining light in the darkest days of baseball.
