

CRISIS: The Most Likely Catastrophes of the Next Decade; Disaster Preparedness and Emergency Survival

A guide to the disasters we are most likely to face in the coming ten years and how to prepare yourself and your home to survive them. Descriptions of the primary threats facing the world help the reader understand the nature and risk of a variety of probable events as well as the causes. From bioterrorism to extreme climate changes to cyber attacks, CRISIS covers the threat and gives step by step instructions for surviving it. Included are directions for storing and preparing food and water, decontaminating after chemical exposure, creating and surviving in a shelter, protecting technology and communication tools from cyber attacks, and preparing for natural disasters. The final chapters teach you how to put together a disaster supplies kit, supply your home for an emergency, and even prepare a quick grab backpack to keep under your bed.
