

Proceedings (Classic Reprint)

Vol. III 1874. No. 7. The Twentieth Ordinary General Meeting was held on Wednesday, the 14th January, 1874, Sir William Thomson, P.R.S., LL.D., President, in the Chair. The President read his Inaugural Address as follows: Gentlemen, I thank you most cordially for the great honour you have done me in electing me to be your President for the year 1874. Our first two Presidents, Mr. Siemens and Mr. Scudamore, in their interesting and valuable addresses, have explained the object of the Society of Telegraph Engineers, and have amply demonstrated its reason for existence. The success which it has already achieved, exceeding the most sanguine expectations of its well-wishers, must be very gratifying to its public-spirited founders, as a fruit earned by the toil and trouble they have voluntarily bestowed upon it. In numbers, in popularity, in usefulness, the Society of Telegraph Engineers has indeed grown with telegraphic speed. When first addressed from the presidential chair, not quite two years ago, the Society consisted of 110 members. Since that time it has augmented to 500: including our Postmaster-General; the Directors-General of the great Telegraphic Administrations of Great Britain and India; many of the officers and operators of those systems and of the great Submarine Telegraph Companies; many scientific men interested in the subject, although not holding official positions in connection with practical telegraphy; and a list of distinguished names constituting our honorary and foreign members. g., vvvv UOL.
