

All Madden: Hey, I&apos;m Talking Pro Football

You used to turn on a television set and youd see Reggie White in a green uniform and youd say, Oh, the Eagles are playing. Or youd see Joe Montana in a red uniform under the center and youd say, Oh, the 49ers are playing. But now you have to remind yourself that Reggies with the Packers. And you had to check to see if Joe was in a 49ers uniform or a Chiefs uniform. You dont know whos playing for which team. Or whos going to be back next season. Once when I was a kid I was walking by John Henry Johnson, the 49ers fullback, after a game. A woman ran up behind him and squealed, John Henry! John Henry! and went to kiss him. He turned around, all sweaty and dirty, but his teeth were in his locker. Arrrggghhh! she screamed and ran away across the field. But he looked like John Henry to me, like the toughest guy Id ever seen. Everything comes to an end, but Don Shula deserved a classier way to exit. He took too much ridicule in Miami his last few seasons. He stood for everything that was good about football, everything that was good about being a coach, everything that was good about being a man. I hated to see him stripped of all that. A Cowboys defensive end, Daniel Stubbs, came to practice every day with this huge sandwich made of two fried eggs, sausage, bacon, and cheese on Texas toast. When we took it to a clinic to be analyzed, one of their doctors wouldnt even touch it. He used tongs to pick it up. Its got more saturated fat and cholesterol, he said, than just about anything weve ever analyzed here! So, of course, I made it the All-Madden Sandwich.
