

Champions of Light

When the Cult of the Sacred Relics locates a lost artifact from a time when angels fell from Heaven, they call on a backslidden Hunter Priest to once again take up his Holy mission. Once a Hunter Priest that wielded near limitless authority, now a broken man longing for death; too ashamed to take his own life because of the memories that still haunt his dreams. Excommunicated for breaking his vows and loving another, he fell from grace. The Cult wants him, the Cult needs his gift. They seek to fulfill the ancient task. The Cult is searching the universe for signs of what was lost from Heaven during the Great Abatement. After the Fallens failed attempt to take the throne of Heaven by force, humanity has been tasked by the King to find his Sons lost armor. There's only one problem. The artifact may be impossible to acquire. It is believed to be located in one of the most dangerous places in the entire universe where no mortal would ever choose to go. The artifact is very likely to be in possession of one that the Cult would deem the most evil of all beings that has or ever will exist. Will he accept this forbidden quest that he undertook once before all those years ago? A quest that has claimed the lives of so many loyal subjects and friends? Can he step back into the light of repentance, and accept his place once more among the servants of the Holy Cult? Should he even try? So, the real question is... will he risk his very soul to eternal damnation for love?
