

Still A Country Boy After Embracing the World: From Peace Corps Volunteer to Founder & CEO of The Resource Foundation - A Life of Service

Still a Country Boy is a memoir of Loren Finnell's non-profit experiences, throughout his life, beginning with the Peace Corp. Loren Finnell, President & CEO of The Resource Foundation; was presented the 2006 Sargent Shriver Humanitarian Award, on behalf of the National Peace Corps Association by Harris Wofford, co-founder of the Peace Corps with Sargent Shriver, and former Senator. ....Loren says the single most important event was the birth of the Peace Corps in late 1961. Hearing about that birth, it was impossible to ignore the excitement being generated by this new opportunity. I knew immediately that it was something that I wanted to do. When he was accepted and left for the Peace Corps, he did not realize he was starting a career that would take him around the world and make multiple trips to 44 countries in three continents, and enable him to assist millions of persons living in poverty, both directly and indirectly. He had never been on such an adventure. In fact, he says he had never really been outside of North Manchester, Indiana, or interacted with persons from another country or culture.... A wise philosopher and observer of America and of the world, Scott Buchanan of St. Johns College, said that the watch words for the 20th Century were: We must be more inventive if we are going to do our duty. For a lot of that century and fortunately still at work in the 21st Century, Loren Finnell has been inventive, in the best sense....I hope this country boys book will be widely read and stir the imagination of those who are ready to go on their own adventure, at home or around the world. Senator Harris Wofford
