

An Arctic Man: The classic account of sixty-five years in Canadas North

Born in Labrador, one of 19 children of a Scottish Hudsons Bay Company cooper, Lyall grew up in a north dominated by white traders. After adventures that took him around the Arctic and down the Labrador coast, Ernie settled in Fort Ross in the Arctic Islands. He married an Inuit woman, Nipisha, and immediately became part of her extended family. Ernie writes warmly about his Inuit friends and family, and about daily life in the Arctic during a period when the Inuit were living their traditional lifestyle. Arctic Man offers a rare, privileged view of the peoples of the Canadian Arctic.
