

Field of Dreams: My Ibrox Years

Richard Gough was born in Stockholm and grew up in South Africa, but has played all his professional football in Britain. He led Rangers to victory in all the major domestic competitions in Scotland, and on their dramatic run in the European Champions League. He has also captained his country. In this autobiography he presents views as single-minded as his performances on the field, offering an account of his transfer-demand bust-up with Dundee United manager Jim McLean, his airport row with Scotland team manager Andy Roxburgh, and his career with Dundee United, Tottenham Hotspur and Rangers.
