

Good Practice in Childminding: A Handbook for the Diploma in Home-based Childcare

This unique book provides childminders, in practice or training, with the sound foundation required to work safely and professionally with children. Written by two of the countrys leading child-care authors, the book covers childrens needs, behaviour and development, as well as featuring sections on safety, child protection, disabled children, professionalism, relationships with parents and childminding as a business. This book has been produced in conjunction with the National Childminding Association, and will provide a useful and reliable guide to all practising childminders. It also provides a useful complement to the DCP 1 course, and will be an invaluable course companion.
