

Household Safety Sourcebook

About 2.5 million children are injured or killed by hazards in the home each year. Many of these incidents could be prevented by using simple child safety devices on the market today. Many other needless household accidents occur due to the lack of knowledge. Because safety is best accomplished through prevention, the first step toward a safer home is identification of household hazards. This Sourcebook contains information about common household hazards and injury prevention strategies, including safety concerns regarding poisons, chemicals, fire, water, electricity, indoor air quality, toys, play grounds, lawnmowers, and other home equipment. A section with guidelines for holiday and recreation safety is provided. In addition, a glossary and resources for further help and information are included.
