People have mixed drinks for centuries, but it was not until the late 17th century that the cocktail become popular enough to be recorded in history books. Cocktails have now become an integral part of modern day socialising in restaurants, bars, clubs and homes. Cocktails and cocktail parties have been used by restaurants and hotels as a means of attracting patrons between 5 pm and 6 pm - hence the Happy Hour. Some events, such as wedding receptions, are preceded by a cocktail hour in which guests can socialise while eating canapes and drinking. Organizers of these events use the cocktail hour to occupy guests between related events and to reduce the number of guests who arrive late.
