

Joanna, Gods Special Child: Joannas Extended Familys Desire, Determination and Will to Give a Profoundly Intellectually Disabled Member the Best

Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston in the 1950s, referred to individuals with mental retardation as Gods special children. Joanna was one of those children, and this is the story of her mothers desire, her extended familys determination, and a surrogate parents will to give a profoundly intellectually disabled family member the best life possible. Joanna was only 15 years old when her mother died prematurely during a heart operation. Three generations of her family worked with military precision to care for their orphaned teenage family member until Joannas death as a senior citizen. Family members monitored Joannas care at the Fernald Developmental Center. They brought Joanna home a few days per week for home cooking, leisure time, day trips, and inclusion in special family events. And they monitored her pension benefits so she could enjoy all the neighborhood functions possible from her Fernald condominium-like apartment. Over the years, Joannas cousin George became a surrogate brother and then a surrogate parent to her. George had been active with several family member advocacy organizations, where he gained the knowledge to assist with Joannas care. When Joannas Down syndrome became Alzheimers, George was there, every day, to make her last few years as comfortable as possible. His book not only chronicles the love and dedication of one family-it also contains a wealth of information and resources for those caring for their own special child of God.
