

Pre Sale Content Marketing Trends 2013

Content Marketing is transforming the way marketing professionals market their products. With nearly $17 billion invested in 2012 (according to the Custom Content Council) , content marketing is fast becoming the cornerstone of the B2B marketing mix. However, not all content marketing channels perform equally well for every marketing objective. We identified the five most significant pre-sales marketing objectives of the B2B CMO: creating awareness, generating leads, nurturing prospects, activating engagement and influencing purchases. We analyzed content types and distribution mechanisms through the lens of these marketing objectives. This report details our findings about which content tactics B2B marketing organizations are using, and which distribution channels are most effective based on measurements of reach, conversion and ROI. This data helps CMOs invest in the right content marketing tactics for executing their content marketing strategy.
