

Final Entry (Murder at the Dog Show Book 1)

Jennifer Brooks normally leads a quiet life. A Mental Health Administrator during the week, a breeder and exhibitor of champion Cardigan Welsh Corgis on her own time, and member of the board of directors of her national club. Her quiet life is turned upside-down when the club treasurer dies in an accident and the husband asks Jen to take charge of their dogs and his wives records. She turns the treasury records over to another board member, but someone wants something else. First the treasurers house is burgled, then Jens. Theres an attempted break-in at her office, followed by a series of disturbing phone calls. Suddenly, the treasurers death is being investigated as murder. The husband is a suspect, then suspicion falls on Jen herself. The treasurers handbag is found and holds a clue but the police arent interested. Jennifers search for answers leads her to a questionable medical clinic hundreds of miles away, but whats the connection to the dead treasurer? In the midst of all this turmoil theres romance in the air and a beautiful litter of puppies is born. When Jen travels to see them she and the breeder discuss the murder and she remembers the piece of the puzzle still in her possession. Will Monty, her devoted champion stud dog, hold off the bad guy long enough for Jennifer to solve it?
