

Voice From An Urn: A mother tells her side of her daughters true story of incest (No Tears for my Father Book 3)

When a father physically, mentally and sexually abuses his daughter from ages 11-23, why does her mother do nothing? Has the mother enabled this situation? Did she want this to happen? Why didnt she step in and help her daughter? What kind of mother does nothing Or, did this mother even know? These are the questions readers of Viga Bolands first memoir, No Tears for my Father were asking after reading the graphic details of her true story of incest. It was an ugly secret Viga Boland had kept hidden for over 45 years. She told no-one, including her husband, until she was 65. Now, in Voice from an Urn, Viga addresses her readers questions through her mothers own words. Find out why her mother did nothing as together they fill in the blanks about those tension-filled years of secrecy. This is Part 3 of the story begun in No Tears for my Father, a return to the horror of those years after the oasis offered in Part 2, Learning to Love Myself, Vigas memoir of recovery and rebirth. Voice from an Urn is another gripping true story by Viga Boland, written for BOTH victims of incest: the children and their mothers. But it is also a story of unspoken love between a mother and child.
