

Paternalism Incorporated: Fables of American Fatherhood 1865-1940

Between the Civil War and World War I, David Leverenz maintains, the corporate transformation of American work created widespread desire for upward mobility along with widening class divisions. In his view, several significant narrative constructs, notably the daddys girl and the daddys boy, emerge at the intersection between paternalist practices and more democratic possibilities for self-advancement. From Mark Twains Laura Hawkins in The Gilded Age to the protagonist of Theodore Dreisers Sister Carrie and Willa Cathers Alexandra Bergson in O Pioneers!, Leverenz finds that the image of the daddys girl constrains the emerging threat of the career woman even as it articulates the lure of upward mobility for women. In surveying the figure of the daddys boy, Leverenz examines tensions between young mens desires for upward mobility and older mens desires for paternal control. Paternalism Incorporated also addresses yearnings for individualism and paternalism in various critiques of the emerging corporation. Another chapter links honor and shaming to race in the philanthropic practices of Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller, framed with narratives by William Dean Howells, Booker T. Washington, and Jane Addams. After showing how a daddys girl becomes a paternalist in Henry James's The Golden Bowl, Leverenz considers F. Scott Fitzgeralds Tender is the Night as paternalisms elegy, contrasted with the Shirley Temple film The Little Colonel.
