

The Encounter

Its late and youre tired from driving for twelve hours in pouring rain. You stop to get a bite to eat at the only diner open for fifty miles. There is only one other customer in the place and when the cook and the waitress are less than attentive, he begins talking to you. You exchange pleasantries and then he tells you to use your mind to tell the cook what you want to eat. You think hes crazy, but the cook jumps up and gets you your meal. You think its just a coincidence but your fellow diner suggests otherwise and the conversation leaps from reality to the surreal. Believing youve encountered a mental patient you decide to leave, in hurry, only to discover youre not going anywhere. And your new found friend is taking you on conversational thrill ride through mankinds history, from its origins to the future predestined for us all. Open your mind to the possibilities that encountering an Alien, from a race a hundred billion years more technically advanced than mankind, might present. Face the alternative explanation of our existence and then be ready to decide which is the truth and which is just a story meant to entertain you. The Encounter, where reality may not be what you thought it was.
