

Saving Our Daughters Vol. 5

To Whom It May Concern: The Saving Our Daughters Series will now attack the issues of bullying within the teen girl population. As the subtitle reads, Who will save the little girl?...from whom she is now become, speaks once again with intense letters from girls who have encountered problems at an early age with self-esteem and now later in life, deals with issues of having been a victim or the perpetrator of bullying. Once again the women of film and television such as Janet Jackson and Anika Noni Rose (from their powerful performance in For Colored Girls), Malinda Williams, Nicole Ari Parker, Irma P. Hall and Debbi Morgan, (better known as the beautiful and seasoned actress Angie, on All My Children) who all starred in the popular early 2000 Showtime family series Soul Food, will voice their opinions in the Foreword and quotes throughout this powerful edition of Saving Our Daughters. Also Creator/Executive Producer of the film Soul Food and series, Tracey E. Edmonds, will address issues of self esteem within the bullying walls. The gifted singer, songwriter and actress, Tiffany Evans from Music World Entertainment/Columbia Records, will lend some personal insight, as she contributes her own special chapter about abuse and bullying in the book called My Diary. The chapter will also include teen girls confessions on speaking to a friend about bullying. Hold on to your seat and read shocking confessions from teen girls on dealing with their inner fight: the deadly addiction of bullying. I kept things inside when I was growing up. Dont do that. Find someone you can trust and talk to. That is when it started to get better for me when I found someone that I could talk to. ~ Janet Jackson
