

Stop Reacting and Start Responding

Stop Reacting and Start Responding is a no-nonsense, reality-based book written so parents can easily locate the situation they're facing, read the suggested new perspective and method, then immediately take action to address whatever situation is unfolding. The book takes an honest, realistic look at the emotions produced for both parent and child as they face the every day events that happen when raising young children. The new perspective outlined in this book inspires the calmness and clarity needed to create the boundaries necessary to teach children about their behavior.
