

Tears of the Son: Coping with the grief of being twice disinherited

My way of coping with being disinherited from the wills of both of my biological parents. What would make a parent legally abandon the inheritance to a child? This is a letter to my dad to let him know how much pain it has caused me, but I don't feel that it would really matter to him, as he has made a lifetime of dismissing the things I view as important, so I hope that this can help somebody else, so that the pain I feel is not in vain. Filled with angst and some curse words, so not for softies!
