

Book of Fear

What are you afraid of? Do you have irrational fears that cause you to create monsters that keep you from fully trusting in God? The reality is that most of us go to great lengths to avoid the things that frighten us. But what if we were to find ourselves thrown into the midst of the things that terrify us most? And what if facing our fears was the only way to save not only ourselves but the people we love as well? That is the dilemma faced by five teenage companions when they become entrapped in the World of Phobos. At a local carnival, Jamal Williams, Luis Ramirez, sisters Cynthia and Kelly Blake, and Robert Caldwell are looking for something more exciting than the rides and midway games. Unfortunately for them, they find more than they are looking for when they enter a scary camper at the outskirts of the fairgrounds. Inside the decrepit trailer they discover the diabolical book of the evil creature Phobos and touch the ancient and mysterious pages. Phobos has a cruel penalty for anyone handling his book. When his evil form rises up before them out of the midst of its pages, he warns them of the consequences they must now face for their unforgivable crime. Few who become imprisoned in the fearsome World of Phobos escape to tell about it. But these five friends have two weapons far too many do not possess: faith in God and a strong love for one another. But will those things be enough to save them from the malicious power of the Book of Fear?
