

This and That

J.T. McDaniel's latest book is a three-part delight. This and That begins with a collection of short stories, several written for this book, including: Eighteen Hours (New, submarine action off the east coast) Blackout (semi-hard boiled murder) Survivor (if your ship is torpedoed, what next?) The Collinsville UFO (New, a true historic mystery) Conflict of Interest (New, preacher wants those books banned) Skagerrak (early Hans Kruger story) A Big Disappointment (New, expansion baseball humor) Memoir (a vampire remembers) Morts Maid (cabalistic mysteries) Predator (the thoughts of a serial killer) A Patient Man (what really happened to Felder?) Castle Grosshelm (treasure and...) Mission Twenty-Five (8th Air Force story). The autobiographical second part is divided into School Days, Theatrical Things, and Military Events. In the 1950s and 60s, guns in school meant shop projects, and boys all carried pocket knives. McDaniel was in several school plays before moving to New York after his military service. He never got that great part, but spent lots of time around the early 70s Broadway scene. He got more parts after returning to Cleveland, at one point sharing the stage with a future Transformer. In Viet Nam he served with the 1st Aviation Brigade and the 101st Airborne. From these days come: Getting There Movie Nights The Seabees Pitch In Blowing up the Chow Line and Sebastian Cabots Arse. Part Three is called Thoughts on One Thing and Another, with four sections: Movies, Books, and Entertainment; Political Rants; Random Musings; and Science and Mythology. The first includes essays ranging from old movies, to vampires, eroticism in horror, old Cleveland theaters, and exploitation movies. Political Rants include: Common Sense Why Trust China? Voting and Ignorance Defines the Crime. Random Musings include: Mens Rules for Relationships;How to Start Your own Religion;Stuff You Probably Dont Want to Hear, and others.Science and Mythology includes:What is Mythology?Life After Death--MaybeCause and EffectOpen MindsPray for a CureGenetics vs. MoralityIf There Were No ChristianityOn Free WillOn Theistic AtheismConspiracy TheoriesCultsand Aliens and Demons.
