

The Ghost Excavation

It is proposed that the habits learned in pre-battle drill of the culture of war, and the cultural patterns that were followed of the culture of death of mid-19th c. American Society became future manifesting possibilities (with purpose) on Civil War battlefields today. They form part of a habitual, culturally-patterned normal world that we can unearth in a ghost excavation. This makes that world predictable and representative of continuing signs of forms of life on these battlefields. In this sense, haunting manifestations are habits about habits, and a ghost soldier is an emergence of a form of life that connects us today with their past beliefs and practices.
